Biography:

I graduated from the University of Georgia College of Pharmacy with my PharmD (Go Dawgs!) and then completed my PGY1 residency at Grady Health System, followed by a fellowship in Clinical Toxicology at the Georgia Poison Center. After fellowship, I credentialed and successfully sat for the ABAT exam in 2016. I am currently the Sr. Clinical Content Specialist – Toxicology for Micromedex. In this role, I contribute to and oversee the toxicology content within Micromedex (Poisindex). This includes creating/updating toxicology managements, weekly literature surveillance, and assisting with the products database. I maintain an affiliation with the Georgia Poison Center where I participate in the toxicologist on-call rotation. I also work on an as needed basis as an Emergency Medicine Clinical Pharmacist at Grady Health System. I live in Atlanta, GA with my husband and three children (5, 3, and 1). Outside of work, I enjoy playing tennis, attending sporting events, and exploring the playgrounds and parks around the city with my family.

Platform:

It has been my pleasure serving as an ABAT Advisory Board member for the past four years. During this time, ABAT has continued to evolve, and I am proud to have contributed to initiatives that strengthen our organization, support our Diplomates, and advance the practice of clinical toxicology. I am now asking for your support in my election to the position of ABAT Chair-Elect, with a focus on member engagement, growth, and increased visibility.

During my time on the Board, I have taken on committee chair roles for the Scientific Committee – LLSA and Webinars, as well as the committee chair for the ABAT Business Meeting/Fellow Reception. It has been a rewarding experience to lead the educational and social offerings of ABAT; I've enjoyed contributing to the learning and knowledge of our members, as well as seeing members connect and engage with one another. If elected as Chair-Elect, a key priority of mine will be to broaden and deepen member engagement across our organization. ABAT thrives when Diplomates feel invested, heard, and empowered to contribute. I will continue to emphasize committee involvement and pathways for members to take on leadership roles within our organization. Encouraging involvement not only strengthens ABAT today, but cultivates our future leaders.

Growth of our organization is another key priority of mine. I have actively supported our initiative to expand ABAT Diplomate status to international candidates. This initiative not only offers growth, but fosters global collaboration and enrichment of perspectives within our organization. Another critical component of our organization's growth is our commitment to education and training of future Diplomates. I strongly support our existing clinical toxicology fellowships and the important role they play in preparing future Diplomates and advancing the field of clinical toxicology. If elected, I would work to further strengthen ABAT's relationship with these programs, promote visibility and support for fellows, and encourage engagement between fellows and Diplomates. In addition, I am enthusiastic about promoting the development of new fellowship programs. It is also important to support those candidates wishing to seek Diplomate status through non-fellowship avenues by providing them with mentorship and opportunities early in their careers. Supporting the education and training of future Diplomates is vital to the long-term health of ABAT and our profession.

Equally important to growth is increasing the visibility and recognition of ABAT. Sustainable growth relies on the visibility of ABAT, our members, and our profession. If elected, I will advocate for efforts to raise awareness of ABAT and the value of our profession. Enhancing our presence through educational programming, collaboration with related professional societies, and clear messaging about the expertise of ABAT Diplomates will not only increase the visibility of our organization, but support growth as well.

I believe ABAT is at its best when our members are engaged, connected, and have a voice. We must continue to grow and invest in the future of our organization and profession. If elected to the position of Chair-Elect, I will bring energy, continuity, and a collaborative leadership style to help guide ABAT forward while preserving its mission and values. Thank you for your continued support. I would be honored to serve as Chair-Elect and the future Chair of ABAT.
